EVENT OVERVIEW

Singapore's Next Stop: Digital Transformation

Digital Transformation plans are high on the agenda for many firms in Singapore – with the impending wave of Industry 4.0 sweeping the nation. Singapore emerged among the Top 25 countries best positioned to benefit from the rise of advanced manufacturing and smart factories, according to a new report from the World Economic Forum (WEF).

The future ahead looks hopeful and rewarding – Think: Good Job Opportunities, Stronger Businesses, and a Better Quality of Life.

But, how does your organization play a part? How do you have a share?

“Singapore needs to rethink how we develop our people, and imbue in them a sense of pride, drive and a growth mindset to progress further.”

David Pang, Chief of Staff at Shiseido Travel Retail (South China Morning Post)

WHY ATTEND?

Singapore stands to Greatly Gain from Industry 4.0 – And It Needs Us

The fourth industrial revolution, or “Industry 4.0”, requires workers to master new skills ranging from using complex technology platforms to different ways of working and interacting with colleagues in order for them to remain employable. Growing number of companies in Singapore are adopting automation and artificial intelligence in their operations as Industry 4.0 continues to gather pace, putting increasing pressure on employees to upskill.

However, learning agility and mindset problems are huge challenges faced by companies and employees in Singapore in trying to maintain such a vibrant economy. There is an urgent need for managers to step up as the role models to change their employees’ mindset and behaviour.

Join our Learning Festival to learn how our nation’s emerging wave of Digital Transformation & Industry 4.0 affects you and your organization, and how we can play a part!
